Consulting

A partnership approach for improving your business performance

FleetAdvice™ is a consulting service from GE's FleetIntelligence that uses Lean Six Sigma* methodologies to improve and streamline your business processes. Our team of experts will help you analyse your business, identify potential issues and then make suggested improvements. We use Lean Six Sigma* to find ways to remove waste, reduce cycle time and then make sustainable long term improvements through digitized solutions.

Our team of consultants has considerable experience in the transport and logistics fields and is available to share that experience with you. FleetAdvice™ gives you the tools to improve your operations and your company's profitability.

GE imagination at work

What our Consulting service can offer you

- Consulting advice from a team of experts
- Financial and operational trailer knowledge
- Lean Six Sigma* tools and methodologies
- Projects managed in complete confidentiality

Why our Consulting service is important for you

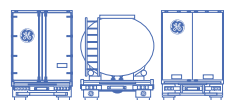

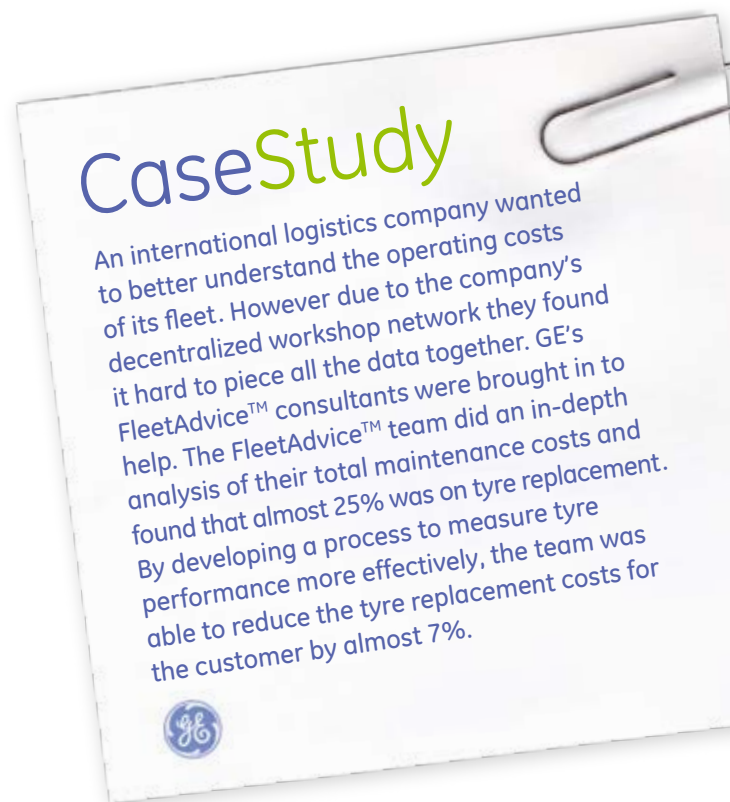

- Objective and transparent 'health check' from our trailer industry experts
- Over 40 years trailer expertise in managing a fleet of more than 74,000 trailers
- Pan-European capabilities allowing cross country comparison and best practice sharing
- Over 10 years Six Sigma experience
- Clear business improvement recommendations at the end of each project
- State of the art financial and operational knowledge
- Scalable regardless of your business size or complexity

* Lean and Six Sigma are two separate improvement approaches, but fully complementary. Six Sigma is based on the use of statistical tools to reduce product and process defects, while Lean uses a set of management and problem solving tools to eliminate waste. They can both substantially help you improve your business.
